WISCONSIN CENTRAL UNIVERSITY HIRES NEW WOMEN BASKETBALL COACH Emilie Shiver starts a new journey at WCU

MADISON, Wis. – Emilie Shiver, has accepted the position of head women’s basketball coach at Wisconsin Central University. After Coach Carmen Young’s resignation four months ago, WCU Athletic Director Reggie White formed a search committee, choosing Shiver on Jan. 22nd 2015.

Shiver, the 32-year-old University of Tennessee alumnae, accepted the position at an annual salary of $125,000. Shiver played professionally for two years as point guard for the L.A. Sparks, and preceded as assistant coach at Birmingham Southern for two years. Shiver’s career record is an impressive 122-30. Reggie White is excited about the new coach and opportunity, “Shiver is a wonderful addition to the WCU family and will bring a great energy and winning spirit. Shiver has experience playing in the WBNA and coaching at Birmingham Southern.”

WCU Women's Basketball Team has made it as far as last year's championship game. The team has been referred to by ESPN as a "baby powerhouse," and along with Shiver the team has a promising future.

WCU, the liberal arts college located in Madison Wisconsin, has been recognized for having the "Most Beautiful Urban Country Campus." Enrollment is about 25,000, and the University proudly claims two Rhodes Scholars.
